Comments: Livestock grazing on National Forests, including millions of acres of Wilderness, significantly degrades our public lands. Impacts from grazing must be fully examined and addressed through a transparent, public process that complies with federal laws, including the National Environmental Policy Act.

Moreover, we need to include the impact of greater cattle population to climate change. Not doing something, as in not increasing cattle grazing land, is much less costly than building sea walls etc. to keep safe low-lying areas of population, such as the area where my home is.

Thank you.
