Comments: The wilderness should be managed for native plants and wildlife instead of profit for owners of domestic grazers. We are in the midst of climate change. We are experiencing biodiversity loss as shown through the insect apocalypse, and dramatic bird and native mammal declines. Instead of opening these lands to ranchers and farmers for use of our lands for their profit, protect and manage these lands for native plants, animals and insects which depend on these resources. This will ensure that these lands are a valuable resource for all into the future.
