Comments: It is distressing and totally counter to previous mandates as well as current knowledge regarding climate change and the pressures to indigenous wildlife that you intend to follow through with increasing cattle presence in wilderness areas. These areas were not meant for the kind of pressure and destruction that cattle do cause to the environment, particularly in riparian areas. The permit holders are not held responsible for this destruction. We, the People do not want cattle on our nationally held lands. We, the People follow strict use limitations in wilderness areas. Do cattle? I think not. Please reconsider increasing both numbers of livestock and opening our pristine lands and waters to a destructive contingent of cows, hardly wild, hardly necessary. Thank you for your consideration.
