Comments: While I recognize that judicious updates to conform to existing laws may be a good idea, these proposals go far beyond such general updates. they expand the amount of grazing that can take place in our national forests, ignoring the potential detrimental effects they may have on existing ecosystems, carbon footprints, and the environment. Instead of increasing grazing on these lands, the NFS should allow vacant allotments to be permanently closed and should protect Wilderness, other public lands, and wildlife by limiting, rather than increasing, inappropriate livestock grazing in National Forests. Such measures would protect wilderness and the environment and go in the right direction. If adopted, they could updates to harmonize with existing laws. However, as presently written, I don't think these changes should be adopted.
