

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 4/17/2021 3:53:00 AM

First name: D.

Last name: Schoech

Organization:

Title:

Comments: I grew up on a farm with cattle and helped bale prairies in my youth. Cattle will eat grass down to the nubbins which destroys the seeds needed for the following years growth. Sheep are even harder on grasslands. I believe the Rangeland Management Directives #ORMS-2514 run counter to the Wilderness act. We should be protecting our wildernesses rather than letting ranchers graze them. I have studied creeks and one of the first suggestions to fix damaged creeks is to keep cattle away from them. Ranching and wilderness preservation do not mix. Please drop your proposed Rangeland Management Directives.