Comments: I have personally witnessed the contrast between forestlands where grazing is permitted, and those same forestlands when it has been prohibited. Grazing as it is commonly practiced significantly degrades natural ecosystems, and should be strongly limited and extra-carefully managed on some public lands, and not permitted at all on most. Grazing must never be allowed near wilderness at all. Please eliminate any recent rules or guidance that suggests current grazing uses could be expanded as that would result in nothing less than a disaster.
