Comments: This is a senseless, horrific avenue to take with these beautiful wild horses! How dare they phase them out like they will. They are innocent beings, just trying to survive out in the wild. We don't want these regal wild horses to become just a memory. All of our lives, they have been there. As a little girl I used to draw my little stick horses, and I dreamed of riding horses every day. It made me so happy that I had that dream. There are countless little boys and girls dreaming of being a cowboy or a cowgirl when they grow up. You will be dashing those dreams! I have grand daughters who have started drawing horses already, just like I did. I'm pretty good at it now, at age 71. I don't want to think of the day that a child sees a picture of a horse and says "mommy, what is that?" I love the smell of horses. I used to be at a stable every day in the summer at our cabin in the Sierra's, just caring for them and giving them individual attention. Please don't let our wild horses fade away!!
