Comments: I understand that cattle grazing, when done conscientiously, can have ecological benefits. I am concerned that, if not done with great forethought, it results in degraded water quality and soils, the spread of invasive weeds, destruction of riparian and other important habitats, reduced forage for and displacement of native wildlife, and much more. I do not believe that we have the skills or the will to graze cattle in wilderness to that they do not have these negative impacts. Please ensure that any grazing on public lands has the effect of improving, rather than degrading, our ecosystems.
