Comments: I find it appalling that the Forest Service wants to turn our public lands into areas for grazing domestic animals and even wants to give grazing rights to companies and partnerships. Stop this. These grazing rights are pennies on the dollar and provide unfair advantage over every other operator who has to pay full price for renting pasture ground. I think the Bundy family owes the federal government over one million dollars for running his cattle onto our public lands. Our ancestors preserved public lands for us, now we must preserve our public lands, our national treasures, for our grandchildren and their children's children.
