Comments: The management and preservation of the nations wild horses, including those herds in Arizona, is our duty as Americans. The only reason these herds are being targeted for killing is to give ranchers who have political clout access to our public lands. Tourists are not coming to Arizona to see cattle. They are coming to see the native lands and the horses, not cattle. Arizona's wild horses are crucial to our tourism dollars. I have lived in Arizona in the past and travel to Arizona to photograph the natural environment and the horses, as well as to visit my family. We love Arizona's horses. Please consider these issues over those of cattle ranchers. Cattle does not belong on our public lands. Greedy ranchers take advantage of our tax payer dollars that support our public lands. Protect our horses. There are fertility management plans that can control the herds size. please stop the senseless killing of our horses. They are a national treasure, not cattle.
