Comments: The wild horses and burros must be allowed to remain free. They compliment, not harm, the environment. The problem is the ranchers want the public lands for cattle grazing. The horses and burros are supposed to be protected by law, not removed from their homes and families. Helicopter roundups are terrifying and unnecessary. Once these creatures are tortured and captured this way, they end up in holding pens with thousands of others. Some may get adopted, but the possibility of the slaughterhouse is a reality for more.
