Comments: Being a concerned animal rights advocate, I am appalled to learn of the reckless and completely inexplicable proposal to remove the Heber Wild Horse Herd from their current habitat. There is no scientific basis behind this ill-advised strategy, as it just displaces these wild horses from their rightfully deserved home. There is no evidence of overpopulation, and studies have in fact shown that these horses actually self-regulate. This cruel plan by the BLM represents an egregious overreach of authority, and they should make the compassionate decision to abandon its implementation. These iconic horses deserve to retain their home of 150 years and should be PROTECTED, not REMOVED.
