Comments: Why is it that the wild horses are inhumanely rounded up because some ranchers want their federal/state grazing land protected for their cattle only. There's plenty of range now. If some of the horses were spayed/made infertile, it would certainly be better than the roundups that can kill or maim the horses. And what happens to the ex-free wild horses? Put up for auction and quite possibly go to be slaughtered at meat markets. These wild horses are few in number compared to the number of cattle on the rangelands. It would be nice if the beuaracracy might find a better way to solve this problem. Our wild horses are an icon of the American west. Protect them for our future generations.
