Comments: Hi There is ample room for these historic horses to roam as over the centuries. They are part of the charm of the area for visitors and it is of no value to look for the odd herd they need to be seen and enjoyed. The Ranchers are taking over with there cattle and sheep and vehicles hence the concern about fodder and water. These are public lands and should be for the Americans and tourists. A full scientific study must first be conducted to assess how many there are. Please dont take away your American Heritage it would rob the history for all the future generations. Please please no roundups.
