Comments: I am for raising the decibel. The people on the dunes are there for enjoyment. They are not hurting, anyone. It's a huge source of tourism dollars. When you start limiting things, and making it less desirable, they will take their money, elsewhere. I understand that people that live by the dunes are opposed and complaining about the noise, at the current decibel. My thoughts are this, they knew the dunes were there, when they purchased or rented their home. I knew I was going to hear airplanes and coast guard copters, when I bought my place in Airport Heights. I don't have the right to complain about it now, after buying my house. I feel the same way about the dunes
