

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 7/1/2021 4:41:29 PM

First name: McKenna

Last name: Maxwell

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Dear Forest Service,

Scientific research explicitly shows that logging in fire-affected forests is ecologically the worst thing you can do for every aspect of the environment, and would likely increase future risk of fire in these watersheds.

I urge you to forgo this massive logging project and focus on public safety. Focusing solely on imminent hazard trees (that are completely dead), and only around recreation sites and on major roads, not the entire 922 acres of roadside logging, as proposed in Alternative 2, is our best option for a healthy and safe watershed.

Sincerely,

McKenna