

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 7/1/2021 7:07:53 PM

First name: Michael

Last name: LeClair

Organization:

Title:

Comments: The best scientific information indicates that we need to preserve Early Successional Forest Ecosystems (ESFE) after disruptions. ESFS'are some of the most biodiverse ecosystems on earth and post-fire logging impedes and delays natural healing processes; it's analogous to the picking of a scab that hinders the healing process. Let nature recover at its own pace in its own way. In the end, the ecological and economic benefits will be much greater.