Comments: Guided should be thought of as access for the public. Climbing guides should be certified by the AMGA and follow the SOP of the Amga as there are different levels of training and certification.

If you require guides to be Amga certified, you assure that the public that hired them can not only a safe day but also learn about LNT and other local info that can help use public land in a way that preserves it for future generations.

Amga certified guides also have medical knowledge not just for their own guests but can help others in emergencies.
