Comments: Hi:

I'm writing about the Foothills Landscape Project in the northernmost part of our beautiful state of Georgia.

I've spent so much time in that area that I adopted a rescue dog that was born in the hills. Those hills are covered with a breathtaking array of trees. Let's keep as many as possible. Even the dying ones do not always have to be removed since they are appealing to woodpeckers. Think of the magnificent Pileated. Its sousing the Ivory Bill is already extinct.

Please refrain from logging if at all possible. Of course pesticides/herbicides are poisons. Need I say more about poisoning our landscape?

Thank you for your time.
