Comments: The smoke this year has been unbearable. It makes it extremely difficult to breath. I am opposed to burning more. I understand it is nature's method of cleaning and renewal. Our interference with this is part of the problem, but I don't think adding fire where we think it belongs is the solution. There are other ways to mitigate fire risk, such as responsible wood harvest. You could potentially create jobs for people to clean up dead wood and other debris. I would be much more inclined to support something along these lines rather than burning and creating additional health problems for us who already struggle.
