Comments: Dear Coronado National Forest:

I love this land. It is absolutely beautiful and it needs our protection. It is fragile and it is public. The mine does not care about the land, community or Forest Service. They are a foreign corporation that wants to take advantage of the land and our precious water. In a few years' time they will go away and leave this land destructed. It will never be the same again. They cannot guarantee that nothing destructive will happen to local water sources.

I think it is our responsibility to take care of our land and our water. This mine has nothing to offer to our community or this land. We have to make choices to preserve this land and look at this case from a long-term perspective.

It breaks my heart that the land we are talking about is actually National Forest. It is public land and it should be open and preserved for all of us, not miners.

Thank you for reading

Marta
