Comments: The Coronado National Forest is one of the forests managed, preserved, and protected by the US Forest Service. These forests belong to the American people, who benefit from the biodiversity that helps maintain stable ecosystems, the cultural heritage, connection to nature afforded by recreation in forest lands, and the removal of carbon dioxide from the atmosphere which helps combat climate change.

The Small Tracts Act sale of National Forest land to Arizona Minerals, Inc. is tied to the Hermosa mining project. Mining will negatively impact the forest and its benefits will be diminished. The sale should not be approved.
