Comments: As an avid hiker on the SFNF, and a resident of Santa Fe, the proposed project affects me greatly. I am alarmed at the large amount of tree removal contemplated. Although the stated purpose is resilience and fire management, there is significant controversy regarding the ecological and scientific evidence for this kind of landscape level treatment being of benefit to the forest or to the public. I believe the Forest Service is obligated to conduct an Environmental Impact Statement with a range of alternatives before proceeding. I oppose the Santa Fe Mountains Landscape Resiliency Project.
