Comments: I strongly oppose the use of violent helicopter roundups, as well as management tools that include dangerous and painful surgical sterilization of wild mares! It's unethical decision making when there is a safe, proven and humane fertility control vaccine "PZP" available.

I strongly oppose the agencies' plan of reducing the number of wild horses and burros by more than 80 percent. While wild horses roam, reseed the plains, till the earth, and keep the grasslands healthy, cattle for example decimate the land, leaving it dry and barren. In Europe, the successful conservation movement, "Rewilding Europe," is actually introducing horses into the wild as a direct means of restoring damaged landscapes. Wild horses do miracles to the preservation of our lands. They are essential to maintaining and restoring native grasslands.

Removing an indigenous species by 80% after the UN declared a "Code Red Environmental Crisis for Humanity" is ecologically insane.
