Comments: As a person who lives in Utah and often recreates in the Manti-La Sal National Forest, I'm asking you to fully analyze the Manti-La Sal Conservation Alternative in your development of a new plan. In contrast to the initial alternative set out by the Forest Service, the Conservation Alternative takes the big issues of our generation - climate change, species extinction, dwindling wilderness, air quality, and archeological destruction - and treats them with the consideration they deserve. The Conservation Alternative also considers areas of tribal interest far more thoroughly, bringing tribal partners to the table regarding management of their ancestral lands.
