Comments: Re: the Santa Fe Mountains Landscape Resiliency Project. I live adjacent to the Santa Fe National Forest, and walk through the woods every day. While I understand that the forest is currently overgrown, I'm gravely concerned about this plan, and especially about the chemicals involved and the degree of damage that this proposed plan will do to the forest, especially given the drought conditions. The chemicals being incinerated and being airborne, the damage to the microbiome of the soils, and the proximity to our homes and neighborhood cause me to feel strongly that a full Environmental Impact Study be done before this plan is adopted. I am also a cofounder of Bioneers, and am outraged that this plan is being considered without a full EIS. Thank you for your consideration, Nina Simons
