Comments: You should be able to hear me. All right. This has nothing to do with the comments from our organization, So these are personal comments I live near the wilderness area on the Hayman and there is a there and I've seen this kind of situation also occur in other areas where there are wilderness areas that are established. I'm in favor of wilderness areas in general, I have enjoyed backpacking and the high sierras you know, for many, many years I started when I was 14 which was many decades ago. I'm older than that now, but I also feel that I would like to see a designation that's a step below wilderness areas. For the purposes of being able to properly manage a lot of the problems that occur in in. In our wild lands our national forest and our parks and so on, so forth, that really require some mechanized equipment in order to be able to deal with them. In our local area, here we have a number of people who have water rights, and a safety is that are originated in forest up there in the, in the wilderness area and because mechanized equipment can't get in there it's very, very difficult to keep waterways properly maintained. Where they feed down into the lake is which are maintained for the irrigation of people's barns and for various other purposes. So my comment would be to avoid wilderness areas in places where it would negatively impact uses, the uses outside the wilderness areas or provide a mechanism in wilderness areas for being able to maintain them without the necessity for going for absolute non mechanized maintenance procedures. That's all.
