Comments: The current plan makes the heart error of attempting to regulate drone (UAS) usage. First, drone usage is properly regulated by the FAA. It is an overstep by the Department to attempt to regulate something that is already extensively regulated.

Second, it seems grossly insincere, luddical, and ignorant to try to ban drone use in a National Forest. Our National Forest are not our National Park. The Department allows hunting, private livestock, and private logging in our forests and would now suggest that a small flying camera is some how a danger to the forests. It should be stricken immediately and, at minimum, the people responsible for it's inclusion should be educated as to what a UAS is and how it is used.
