Comments: I am not in favor of seeing anymore winter motorized access closed in the upper end of the Gunnison valley. There are already big geographical areas with little to no motorized access, as in example, gothic, brush creek, cement creek, spring creek, and surrounding wilderness areas. Take in account unridable, and ungroomed access for snowmobiles and riding is already limited. Then taking it one step further with climate change, bad snow years cuts down on rideable terrain. There should be no need for any further winter motorized closures.
