Comments: In support of Wilderness Watch, we are writing to oppose chainsaw cutting on trails to clear them. We travel the US every year and hike on many paths. The use of chainsaws in the wilderness is an oxymoron. When we hike those trails, we are looking to be in nature, with all its natural pitfalls and away from the industrialization of normal American life. Part of that adventure is to understand what happens in nature, such as when bugs invade dead trees and use them for their own needs.

Thanks for listening.
