Comments: PLEASE learn to respect nature as she exists and has for hundreds of thousands of years.

I have no clue why it is that the Caucasian culture feels that it must ALWAYS step in and interfere with natural processes. Folks going into the forest do so for QUIET and PEACEFUL surroundings, not to hear chain saws cutting trees.

Why do Caucasians feel that they must always be in CONTROL? If a tree has fallen, those in the forest will climb over or walk around it to continue on the marked trail. Thinning out the trees is man's idea. Obviously forest fires NOT started by humans is a way that nature takes care of herself WHETHER WE UNDERSTAND AND AGREE or not.

Please learn to walk hand in hand with our Mother instead of always wanting to control her your way. Thank you
