Comments: The USFS cannot be trusted to legally conduct "Post-Disturbance Hazardous Tree Management" because the USFS has been illegally using chainsaws in the Trinity Alps Wilderness. I observed this directly this past summer during volunteer trail work with the Bigfoot Trail Alliance. The illegal chainsaw work occurred on the Rush Creek Trail.

We volunteers followed the law in using hand tools like crosscut saws to clear downed trees. The USFS thinks it is above the law and uses power tools in the Wilderness.

The arrogance of the USFS, blatantly violating the laws of the nation, pisses me off. Nothing the USFS says or does can be trusted, because the USFS is a captured agency that slavishly follows the directives of moneyed interests. USFS leadership should be charged with criminal offenses.
