Comments: Dear Forest Service,

As you know, areas designated as Wilderness cannot have motorized equipment used within their boundaries. These designated areas are to be left as natural forest with natural processes taking place. People who enter designated Wilderness areas assume risk from events such as falling trees.

Your project to clear hazardous risks such as burned trees that could possibly fall on trails must clearly state that the project will not take place in any areas that are designated as Wilderness areas. Please be careful when removing hazardous trees from areas that are immediately adjacent to Wilderness areas so that Wilderness areas are not disturbed.

Thank you for considering my comment.
