Comments: You are short-handed and do not have enough money or staff and should not be spending the manpower and taxpayer provided funds to cut down trees on trails in wildernesses. If you do not believe in having a wilderness, say so. Don't use the excuse of clearing trees in order to prevent forest fires. That is a technical farce. A wilderness should be allowed to be a wilderness. Creating and clearing trails is a first step in the "management" of a wild land area that will lead to off road vehicles, roads, and eventually clearing trees. Do not support this wilderness destruction prescription, which is all this is.
