Comments: It will not be long before the wilderness and the Eco Systems we support are all gone. The health of the planet depends on the health of the wilderness that supports the health of our Eco Systems. If those fail so does our planet, and so will human civilization.

The problem is the people in power are Narcissists, Sociopaths, and Psychopaths who because of their arrogance, selfishness, and egos only care about themselves, money, and power.

These people don't care about what is happening now, or what is going to happen to their families in the future. The powerful know that they will be dead, and long gone before the effects they are causing on this planet and its wildlife effects them.
