Comments: The concept of wilderness should be little if any intrusion or conversion by or from humans.

That includes leaving dead standing or fallen trees regardless of location.

If people wish to visit wilderness areas/regions they should need to accept the challenges and and risks associated with that endeavor.

No human manipulation should be done or encountered. This is especially includes absolutely no use of motorized or other non-human powered equipment.

The boundaries of wilderness should be absolutely inviolate with regard to human manipulation.

Your mantra: Leave it alone!
