Dear USDA,

Please note that I fully agree with and support the comments of George Wuerthner.

Mountain bikes are destroying the habitat values and actually killing terrestrial and even some flying wildlife.

Many mountain bikers seek a thrilling experience and even argue that their impacts are no worse than that of hikers.

This is wrong. Mtn bikers go much farther much much faster.

I see dead animals flattened by bikes.

Many birds during all seasons - not just breeding season - are abandoning their foraging habitats due to the random unpredictable nature of mountain bikers who go fast off trail any where both DAY AND NIGHT!

the mountain biking community has a well-funded investment team backed by the mountain bike merchants.

you must stop them before they destroy our fragile habitats and wildlife communities.

thank you,

Pam Young
