Comments: I've been hiking, biking, and riding CO trails my whole life and watched most of the access get whittled away each year. When remote trails are closed to mechanized traffic they often get overgrown and impassable and then serve no good. 'Wilderness' sounds good but it's such a waste and only available to a select few. The wildlife doesn't care if there's trails. As this country becomes more populated a fewer people are working, the need for more recreational access has never been greater. PLEASE consider Alternative C for the management plan.
