Comments: I want to speak for the creatures who do not speak English, or any other human language. All creatures deserve to live and to be considered. My hope is that we humans, the destructive creatures of the earth, can soften our approach to find and apply ways to live in communion with all of the creatures in our forests and varied ecosystems. I believe we can do this. I believe we can develop ourselves to deepen our consideration in ways that go beyond money and motorized recreation. I urge us all to thoughtfully tune into our intelligent minds and hearts to connect with the creatures who live in the wild. Notice what is best for them! Act with consideration towards them. There is science to back up what is best for them. Please heed these caring voices.
