Comments: NMAC's interest in the objection of Comexico has to do with their permit applications to the Santa Fe National Forest (SFNF) and the New Mexico Mining and Minerals Division (MMD) of Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Department (EMNRD) for exploration of base minerals on Jones Hill. Comexico's parent corporation is New World Resources of Australia, who advertises on its website that it plans to develop a volcanogenic massive sulfide mining operation on 4,000 acres of mining claims in the heart of the Pecos Watershed.
