Comments: I have heard about the forest service's plan to burn a lot of acreage very near Santa Fe, and . . .
WHAT??? The best thing to do would be to leave the forests alone! Micro-managing a forest is not necessary; nature knows forests and how to care for/heal them far better than "the forest service" (In this instance, calling it
"the forest DISservice" would be appropriate).

Whose egos are so big that they have to try to control what is wild and natural?

Ending free-roam cattle grazing would be a far more beneficial thing to do for those forests than prescribed burns.

Thank you for reading,
