Comments: i do not in any way support bringing grazing of any animal back to this area. this area is national land that should be protected for wildlife, wild horses are much admired for this land and other wild animals need this land. trees should be left alone. no new roads, no hunting or trapping permitted on this national land. we need to seriously protect the natural land from all these profiteering ventures on this national land. let the cattle grazer go to private land and pay the rates that private land wants for raising cattle. the cattle grazers are a destructive element because they come into an area and immediately want all the wildlife killed and murdered so they can grow their cattle. we don't need that., america does not want that anymore. we are sick of the cattle grazers destruction, their cheapness in paying for use of land and thinking they own it all. the 335,000,000 american citizens own this land and they want to protect wildlife. i also think this is national land we need to get the word out on projects like this. this is a big country and 30 days just lets the locals know and the entire nation does not have a chance to protect their land. your short time frames are immensely hostile to a nation having no time allotted to it to protect its land, it takes time to get the word out to those people who care about our nation and our land, the profiteers are hanging on it of course because they see money money money for their own wallets., we others look for the benefit of all america, not just locals. land has a benefit for all america and it should be managed to encourage that - benefit for all america not just locals. the collusion between local feds and local profiteers is far too close so that protection seems to be lost in local collusion that goes on and especially when the nation does not get enough time to comment and know what is going on. the nation is a big place and the nation's citizens who care about their land need time to comment on actions by local mgt. we are constrained completely by the regulations that have been put in place by unelected officials in the feds to take away national rights on national land.
