Comments: My personal message to you today is about my home in the GMUG. Those of us LIVING HERE are making every effort to preserve and protect our corner of The Planet by actively moving away from the burning of fossil fuels and investing in renewable energy. This appears to be in stark contrast to the issuing of well permits to extraction companies from Texas and Canada interested in the profits available under our ground. They simply don't give a hoot about the constant truck traffic and environmental threats they pose to the gorgeous Muddy Creek Valley. The photo that accompanies this note shows a part of Hubbard Creek and Condemnit Park, one of our family's favorite places to hike. The very reason it is called Condemnit is the result of rabid extraction that has taken place in our valley for decades. Please help us stop the exploitation of this beautiful country by including it in the areas protected by the proposed GMUG special management zones. Check out the areas that have already been exploited in The Muddy Creek Valley and you'll agree that the nature here is worth preserving. The future is renewable resources like the solar array we installed at cost to our home not the continued extraction of outdated fuel sources. Thank you! And thank you for the opportunity to comment on the draft environmental impact statement (DEIS) for the Grand Mesa, Uncompahgre, and Gunnison National Forest's (GMUG) forest plan revision.
