Comments: Taos Ski Valley has ben radically transformed in recent years with an emphasis on new construction and profit at the expense of it's historic character and to the detriment of the fragile mountain environment. From the base area projects to the Kachina Peak lift, Taos Ski Valley is being robbed of it's charm and culture, and the mountain is being irreversibly harmed by these impacts. Adding a gondola from the front side base to the Kachina Basin will further harm the area and offers no hope of anything other than environmental harm. There is no need for this project. There is more than adequate transportation and infrastructure already present. This appears to be yet another effort at development for the sake of development and so that Louis Bacon may continue to try to impress his billionaire friends. We don't need this, the mountain and the National Forest don't need this. Please consider the mountain, it's history, it's people's culture before doing more damage in the name of capitalism.
