Comments: With the rate the glacier is retreating this seems like a last minute effort to capitalize, though it will likely increase the rate at which the glacier retreats. Boats, pavement and the other propositions will serve to destroy the land and preserve little to nothing for future generations who are from this great place. It will also likely prove to create a lot more traffic and possibly unwanted presence of tourist in the area. I believe this to be a bad idea, regardless of possible financial gains to be made from the various proposals.
