Comments: Management? This is the devastation of a huge swath of trees and it is irresponsible and unethical. To keep roads and trails safe is not bad in itself but there is no justification for there magnanimity of this project. These are not all dead trees and they are homes to so many wild animals who already are in peril from wildfires and loss of habitat. I feel this is an excuse to do extensive logging as many of the roads are not even used anymore and are dead ends. They would facilitate logging though and that is the real purpose here I urge the Forest Service to do more extensive research and focus on high use roads only. Nature and wildlife need to be protected and not just dismissed. We and wildlife are in a climate crisis and every tree makes a difference.
