Comments: I have learned about the logging project around Lake Tarleton with great dismay. I started visiting Lake Tarleton almost ten years ago, and along its shores I got to know the astonishing natural heritage that the United States in general and the White Mountains National Forest in particular have to offer. The beauty and uniqueness of the lake are unimaginable in Europe. When I learned that the area was going to be put under the authority of the WMNF I was happy because I thought that it was the way to ensure that its preservation is a priority. I strongly believe that Lake Tarleton and its surroundings merit to become a scenic area in order to make sure that its amazing beauty can be enjoyed by generations to come.
