

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 5/10/2022 8:38:02 PM

First name: Dylan

Last name: Sommer

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Such an enormous timber sale deserves a far more rigorous environmental impact study, especially considering the sensitive and highly biodiverse locations that would be affected. Standing dead trees provide an invaluable source of organic material for future growth, as well as habitat for myriad species that have evolved to make use of post-fire environments. To forgo further assessment is a risk California's sensitive habitats and threatened species cannot afford for us to take.