Comments: Threatening the already overly logged forests is the opposite action our planet needs at this time. The rivers and wildlife that depend on a healthy ecosystem are already struggling. The bare minimum for that needs to happen is a thoughtful analysis of our forest health currently and an evaluation of the overall goal in land management. These forests are directly linked to rainfall and we are not doing very well with rainfall in the western US so WHY are we logging more trees for profit? Clean up the areas that are overcrowded and LEAVE the area around the rivers alone.
