Comments: I live in the North zone, but I think my comments apply to all three. It is impossible to be as specific as this proposed action requires, it is so vast in its scope. I believe that is its intent.

- You have rejected the suggestions of environmental groups that any salvage logging focus on high use roads and those that have specific characteristics that make logging advisable. This is another intentional mistake.
- It would also be of use to start eliminating the thousands of miles of roads that are a holdover from a bygone era of cowboy logging. We certainly don't want to salvage log near roads that should in fact be left to turn back into forest.
- Your proposal ignores the possible impact on critical habitat for multiple species, including salmon and the spotted owl. It also may degrade conditions on hundreds of watersheds.
- I agree with EPIC and other environmental groups that the project area is too big and impacts are too great to rely on an Environmental Assessment (EA). The agency must conduct an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS).
